GUIDELINES FOR NOMINATION MATERIALS SUBMITTED FOR UNIVERSITY AWARDS

The University Council on Faculty Awards and Honors (UCFAH) requests that the following guidelines are followed for nominations submitted for university awards.

PLEASE NOTE: To prepare dossiers for Presidential Professorships and George Lynn Cross Research Professorships, please refer to these particular awards for specific requirements.

(1) ELECTRONIC TRANSMISSION OF NOMINATIONS: *

An electronic dossier for each nomination is to be submitted by the Dean's Office, via e-mail, to the Provost's Office for placement on a secured website accessible to University Council on Faculty Awards and Honors members only.

(2) HARD COPY NOMINATIONS: *

Hard copy dossiers (one unbound copy) are still required for departmental and college review committees, the Dean, the Provost, and the President. FOLDERS AND NOTEBOOKS ARE NOT ACCEPTABLE. Double-sided copying of the materials in the dossier is encouraged wherever possible to reduce volume and weight. DO NOT SEND ORIGINALS.

New

(3) Faculty Awards Cover Page (see page 5). No other cover document will be accepted.

(4) Include a One-Page Index

(5) The following sequence should be followed:

a. Letter from the College Dean

New

The letter from the College Dean is an important part of the nomination package when the Faculty Awards Council considers nominations from different Colleges and Units across the University, often for the same award(s). Two points are worth emphasizing. First, Deans should not think about their letter just from an advocacy perspective of lobbying for a nominee from their College as aggressively as they can. Nomination letters that are individualized, balanced and realistic can often be more credible. The less the Dean regards the letter as a cheer-leader exercise, and the more s/he steps up to a bigger-picture overall University frame of reference, the better the decision making of the Faculty Awards Council is likely to be. Second, the Dean's letter for an award should focus on the specific criteria that have been enumerated for that particular award. Final selections are based on these specified criteria, and the more the letter is focused on these criteria, the more relevant it will be for the Faculty Awards Council.

b. Letter of Nomination - This is the most substantive core of the nomination package and should be written with that in mind. It should outline the candidate's qualifications for the award and should be a synopsis of the entire application. A three- or four-page letter is not too long as the person (or committee) nominating the candidate must point out how the candidate meets the requirements for the award. Look at the criteria for selection of recipients and address each point. Include innovative teaching, research and/or service. The letter should be in plain English without jargon and technical terms so that it can be understood by all the faculty members on the Council. The nominator should distinguish between normal expectations of faculty performance in their department and extraordinary achievements.

c. Short Biography (about 100 words)

d. Curriculum Vitae (complete)

e. Letters of Support - No more than ten letters from students, current or graduate, OU faculty, or professional colleagues should be included. (Additional letters will be removed.) For teaching awards, letters from students are appropriate; whereas letters from professional colleagues are suitable for research awards. Service awards should be supported by letters from other faculty or individuals who have worked with the candidate in service-related areas. It is wise to solicit more letters than can be used then select from those the most appropriate to include in the application. Letters should be limited to five or fewer pages and specifically address award criteria.

- f. Other Supporting Materials - For teaching awards, include average scores from student evaluation forms. Departments should clarify to the extent possible the teacher evaluation material that is included in the dossiers. Numerical comparisons are helpful but items of comparison should be made clear in the presentations. A one-page summary could be helpful if presented clearly while pages of un-summarized evaluations are less helpful. Also, written comments by students can be useful.
- (6) The quality and clarity of the documentation and direct application to the award criteria are more important than the length of the dossiers.
 - (7) In accordance with Regents' policy, academic units may submit no more than a total of two names for all the Regents' awards (teaching, research and creative activity, and professional and university service).

 The nomination packet should contain only the items listed above unless stated otherwise ***

NOMINATIONS MUST INCLUDE (In This Order)

- (1) A letter of nomination. This is the most important part of the application. It should be written with that idea in mind. It should outline why the candidate is qualified for the award and should be a synopsis of the entire application. A three- or four-page letter is not too long as the person (or committee) nominating the candidate must point out how their candidate meets the individual requirements listed for conferring the award. Look at the criteria for selection of recipients and try to address each of these points in your letter. Include discussion of innovation in teaching, research, or service.

The chairs should be chosen because of the prestige of their departments and their knowledge of the individual's expertise in your candidate's area of study. The chairs provide a vital link in the evaluation process. The ACE rating of graduate programs may be helpful to you in selecting the chairs to contact for reference letters.

These procedures are intended to stimulate a sufficient number of representative nominations and to furnish appropriate and comparable supporting data about each nominee to the President and others who must evaluate these nominations.

Nominations will originate with the academic units and will be submitted to the college deans and other administrators responsible for groups of teaching departments. The University Council on Faculty Awards and Honors will consider the nominations and make its recommendation to the President via the Senior Vice President and Provost.

NOMINATIONS BY THE ACADEMIC UNIT

Suggested nominations and supporting information are to be sent to the dean (or cognizant administrator). Please check with your college dean's office to determine this deadline. Each academic unit may suggest no more than one person.

Nomination should be supported by substantiating statements as described under "Criteria" below.

FORMAL NOMINATION(S) BY THE DEAN

With the name(s) of the nominee(s), the deans will transmit to the Senior Vice President and Provost all substantiating data and will append, for each nominee, their own statements of endorsement. The nominations and related materials are to be delivered to the Office of the Senior Vice President and Provost by November 6.

The Dean of University College may submit nominations to the Senior Vice President and Provost along with substantiating data. These nominations and related materials are to be delivered to the Office of the Senior Vice President and Provost by November 6.

CONSIDERATION BY THE UNIVERSITY COUNCIL ON FACULTY AWARDS AND HONORS

The Council shall consider the formal nominations, together with accompanying data. The Council may seek additional data about the nominees from any appropriate source. The Council shall recommend to the Senior Vice President and Provost by January 20, 2018, two nominees to be recipients of the Good Teaching Award. However, the Council shall transmit to the Senior Vice President and Provost all substantiating materials pertaining to all nominees. The Senior Vice President and Provost submits recommendations to the President for consideration by February 3, 2018.

METHOD OF SELECTION

The final selection of the recipients will be made by the President.

CRITERIA

Only full-time faculty members with the rank of instructor or higher from any academic program with an undergraduate component shall be nominated specifically for this award. Tenure is not required. Those holding distinguished professorships are not eligible. Persons receiving the Regents' Award for Superior Teaching, Research and Creative Activity, and Professional and University Service, are not eligible during the year of their award. A person who has received a Good Teaching Award is not eligible for the next three years after he/she receives it.

Substantiating data should relate directly to the individual's teaching effectiveness at the undergraduate level. These data should be derived from as many as possible of the following sources of evaluation: students in classes, faculty colleagues, seniors and alumni, department chairs, and Committee A. All data submitted should be clearly identified as to the source of the evaluation and the procedures used to obtain them.

Data of recent origin are preferred. However, data submitted one year for a nominee who was not chosen for the award that year may be updated and resubmitted in a later year.

A curriculum vita is expected for general background information, but data of a biographical nature or data pertaining to the nominee's administrative duties, research or creative activities, publications, and service will not be considered as evidence in support of these nominations.

AWARDS

The recipients of the Good Teaching Awards are announced by the President and/or Senior Vice President and Provost at the Spring Faculty Awards Ceremony and Spring General Faculty Meeting. Each receives a cash prize of $1,500.

The nomination packet should contain only the items listed above
